

OTELIA ERNESTINE WORTHY

June 18, 1937

My dear Mr. Allison,

I heard this morning that your splendid play, "The Trial of Dr. Beck," was already on the road to success. My friend, Hortense Gross of Jersey City, saw it Saturday, and told me a few of the incidents, however they were not enough to satisfy my hungry appetite. I hope to see it for myself.

Knowing that Berrie Abrams and her Mother would be interested in such good news, I called them immediately. And now, if you'll pardon my rudeness, I will reintroduce myself as the young woman you met with Bessie not so long ago in Cortland St.

Please let me wish for you not only my sincerest congratulations and good wishes but also that hope that this only the first rung in your ladder of success.
I hope to follow through and watch as you go up.

Sincerely,
Ernestine Worthy
